ELIZABETH S. WOODWARD

Versus

MELVIN M. GEHRIG, JR. AND NATALIE D. GEHRIG

LEMMON, J. Concurs

The trial court's order of May 1997 arguably was unclear and should not form the basis for a contempt conviction. However, the court of appeal has remanded the case for a hearing on whether defendants have complied with the court order, and for possible clarification. If necessary, relator may reapply to the court of appeal for further relief.
